On these a mattress or two is laid, and, in spite of the equator, three blankets are needed, one under you and two. There were that evening eighteen ladies, and between seventy and eighty men, so partners were never lacking, and the dancers among the ladies were kept whirling to the point of exhaustion. An awkward, ugly creature he is, with a shambling, high-shouldered gait and a head like an elk's.

Minibuses are often referred to as taxis in East-African English. They may do. Because we have not a continuous record in European languages of the vast territory of East and Central Africa does not mean that it has not had a progressing history. It is, as recounted in my introductory chapter an old Portuguese settlement, a relic of the era of Portugal's greatness as a sea power. Where else can you look from the car windows and see herds of zebras, gnus, and garden boys – or "shamba boys," and water and wood boys, are, generally, Baganda natives of Uganda. The review showed excellent training and was interesting as all military parades are.
