They have a disposition to dress and act as much like the world as possible and yet go to heaven. They have not drunk of the cup, nor been baptized with the baptism. The kingdoms of the world are offered them, and they eagerly grasp their treasure and think they are wonderfully prospered. Said the angel, as with sorrow he saw the professed people of God loving the world. This passage was continually in my thoughts: Oh, that all could see this as God sees it and showed it to me! He led me to a steep and apparently frail stairway. My gloom has been dispersed by this precious light, and I can never forget it. I prayer availeth .
