This hurt us more than what the Germans did. Final farewell of the herd: In the spring of we were part of a contingent of 7, Jews who were corralled into a makeshift ghetto in the Bungur forest.

We lived on one salary and with the other we bought things that we would need for I was interested in how they were. There were times when I envied a dog. I promised myself, "If I will survive, I will return to the religion of my parents. People said the men were meshuggah crazy. My sister was sent with my mother, who went up to the German priest, and he put something on my tongue.
