September 1, Sold by: The young convert stayed in Denver until August, refusing to return to Chicago and face his Jewish family's displeasure over his conversion to Christianity. Now, he had to learn English. When Appelman refused, the father with indignation and wrath said, "When your sides come together from hunger and you come crawling to my door, I will throw you a crust of bread as I would any other dog. This event seemed to help bring out a crowd of 6, for the next service.

An average Appelman year would see some 7, first-time professions of faith. Unto Me by Hyman J.
